

2020 NYSGE Lecture Series
Autoimmune Pancreatitis
September 15, 2020
8:00 pm to 9:00 pm

Webinar

GoToWebinar information will be included in the registration confirmation email sent to individuals who register at www.nysge.org.

Intended Audience: Gastroenterologists and GI Fellows

Course Description

Autoimmune Pancreatitis is a rare form of pancreatitis caused by autoimmune mechanisms, many of which are not yet fully understood. This lecture will review the basics of autoimmune pancreatitis including categorization into Type I and Type II disease and the unique clinical and histopathologic manifestations of each subtype. Treatment options for autoimmune pancreatitis, maintenance therapy, and relapse therapy will also be explored.

Learning Objectives

- Review IgG4-related diseases
- Describe clinical presentation of autoimmune pancreatitis
- Review diagnostic criteria of autoimmune pancreatitis (HISORT, ICDC)
- Define differences between Type I and Type II autoimmune pancreatitis including demographics, pathology and histopathology, serum, other organ involvement and association with IBD
- Discuss treatment options for both maintenance and relapse
